

Possible questions from parents/family calling about sponsorships.

How can my child qualify for a Scottish Rite sponsorship?

- The family must complete the financial application that will be reviewed by the Scottish Rite committee to determine if there is a qualifying financial need
- The child needs to have a speech and language therapist say that he/she needs therapy
- We prioritize children between the ages of 3 and 6, but could consider other special situations

I have insurance, but they don't pay for speech and language therapy - can you help?

- Yes, we want to help
- You will need to complete the financial form

Will I be responsible for any payment for therapy?

- Depending on your need, you could be responsible for partial payment.

My insurance covers speech and language therapy, but my deductible is too much for us to pay. Can you help?

- We could possibly help you pay your deductible
- Insurance EOBs (explanations of payments) would need to be provided by you or your therapist so we know what your insurance is/isn't paying and when your deductible has been satisfied.
- We could also help with your copay, if it is still too financially challenging, when the deductible is satisfied, but this would need to be written into your contract.

What does Scottish Rite offer for payment?

- Up to $200 per evaluation and $80 per therapy session.
- Therapists who you will be referred to, have agreed to accept these payments.

If my child does qualify, what do I do?

- You need to work with a therapist who has accepted the Scottish Rite's contract
- If you are working with a therapist that hasn't signed on with Scottish Rite, and he/she is interested in a contract, that can be accomplished. Ask them to call us if they are interested in becoming a provider for us.

How long can my child receive your financial aid?

- We will put together contracts for up to 6 months at a time. If your child continues to need treatment and your financial situation has stayed the same, you could qualify for help for a longer period of time.
